WHAT THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE IS DOING

You have been motoring—or wading or walking, or otherwise proceeding—along a fairly good road with nothing to indicate that it would not continue fairly good, and then you have run suddenly in to an impassable place, mired down and had 17 assorted samples of hedges getting out. Everybody else has had the same experience—road maps to the contrary notwithstanding. The road map is a good thing, but it shows what the road used to be, not necessarily as it is. Roads change—mightily rapidly, sometimes. A down-pour of rain and the road is washed out; a night of snow and it is cluttered up beyond passing—though it may have been perfect yesterday. If there were some way of knowing what the road is today, of reading it on a card or map like you do the weather, for instance—

Well, this is one of the new things that the United States Department of Agriculture is undertaking to arrange for you. Henceforth, the weather bulletins will show road conditions. The work was begun by the weather bureau as an aid to winning the war. At first the service applied merely to motor transportation in some eastern states. Then the demand for it became pretty general and very insistent. So without any special appropriations to take care of it, the weather bureau is undertaking in certain states to add daily news of road conditions to its other services. The work can not be perfected all at once. Dependence will have to be placed, for a while, on free information from localities. But the service will be given to the fullest extent possible this year.

BARBERRY FIGHT TO GO ON

There will be no cessation in the vigorous campaign of the United States Department of Agriculture in cooperation with the states, against the barberry until all of the obnoxious bushes are dug up. Recent information from Minnesota, Iowa, Wisconsin and other sections where the barberry has existed for long periods is to the effect that it is growing wild at a number of points. All the field men of the United States Department of Agriculture engaged in the campaign recently met at Ames, Iowa. Reports were made on the work of locating and eradicating barberry bushes from all sections of the thirteen states infested which include Ohio, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Iowa, Michigan, Nebraska, South Dakota, North Dakota, Illinois, Wyoming, Indiana, Colorado and Montana.

CLUB YOUNGSTERS EXCEL IN SCHOOL

A boy or girl who belongs to one of the clubs organized by the Department of Agriculture and the state colleges gets better marks in school than one who doesn't. This is the testimony of the county superintendents in the counties in which clubs have been organized as brought out by a recent inquiry in the southern states. In Monongalia county, W. Va. for two years a complete record has been kept of 53 club members and of the same number of pupils of the same grade and age and from the same schools. The records show that the club members in their monthly examinations have averaged 15 per cent above those who do not belong to a club, 12 per cent in attendance at high school after completing the eighth grade. At the annual spelling contest in the county all the winners were club boys and girls.

A four year record in Comanche county, Texas, shows the scholarship of the club boys and girls to be 11 per cent above those who do not belong to a club.

long to a club. Of the 4,000 boys and girls in rural schools in the county, not one expelled or suspended was a club member. The superintendents agree that club members are more active, have more inspiration to do better work and possess the desire to search for new things. Very few club members stop school in the lower grades, and those not of their own choice.

FEWER BULLS BUT BETTER ONES

How a bull association transformed a community with 18 nondescript bulls into a community with one-third that number of good pure bred sires from high producing ancestors is explained by an extension worker of the dairy division, U. S. Department of Agriculture.

When a bull association was started at Webster County, Mo., the best bull in the community became a standard for the bulls selected by the bull association. All of the new bulls then, are as good or better than the best bull that was in the community before.

Before the bull association was organized the 18 bulls in the community were valued at $1,355 an average of $75.28. One or two of these bulls were pure breeds and the rest were largely grades and scrubs of mixed dairy and beef breeding. After the association was formed these nondescripts were disposed of and six pure bred dairy bulls were purchased at a total cost of $1,657 an average of $276 an animal.

The more efficient utilization of the association bulls resulting from organization of the association made it possible for the six pure bred bulls to take the place of the 18 bulls formerly maintained. The reduction in the number of bulls also resulted in a corresponding reduction in the cost and maintenance to be charge to each cow.

The improvement in the quality of the bulls seemed to have a marked effect on the class of cows kept in the herds and in less than one year after the association was formed the number of pure bred females in the community increased from two in July, 1918, to 42 the following June. The large amount of good which resulted from the transformation of a scrub bull community into a community of good pure bred sires is an agricultural improvement hard to parallel, especially when it is considered that this change was made with an expenditure of only $10 more per farmer and that the use of good sires will result in a lasting improvement to dairy cattle of the community.

BUFFALO HAS COOKED-FOODS CENTER

Bridget can depart at a minute's notice and her mistress, if she lives in Buffalo, will experience no sinking of the heart, for she can order meals for her family from the cooked food center and the family machinery will run as if there had been no interruption. The Buffalo food center is under the supervision of the home demonstration agent of the United States Department of Agriculture and the state college of agriculture and the Buffalo Home Bureau. Complete meals are sent out from it to be served in the individual homes. Its patrons have the family life that centers around the home dining room table with the saving of fuel, labor and food costs, which come through large scale operations.

The work in Buffalo started in a small way, but a few weeks experience showed that the equipment was inadequate to handle the business that immediately developed. The cooking of meals was discontinued until alterations could be made and on June 17 the center was ready to handle business on a large scale. Two hundred people came the first day, and the regular orders for dinners and luncheons continue to grow. The menus are prepared under the supervision of the home demonstration agent so that they represent balanced meals. These menus are distributed to the patrons one week in advance and the orders are returned to the kitchen several days in advance of the delivery of meals. In this way materials may be ordered when they can be secured at the lowest possible figure.

Special features of the service include the Thursday night dinner, which is in great demand by those fortunate housekeepers who have maids to whom they give a half holiday Thursday. Many housekeepers also order the Sunday dinner because it gives them a day free from preparing meals. Food for the sick is a feature of the work in which the physicians are greatly interested. Special diets for special diseases are recommended by the home demonstration agent and this food can be procured at the cooked food center on special orders.

National Party Paper Nears Million Mark

The National Republican, the national Republican party weekly, published at Washington, has now extended its circulation, it is announced, to ninety per cent of all the counties in the country, and the circulation is growing at such a rapid rate that the hope of party leaders for a million circulation for this national mouthpiece of Republican opinion bids fair to be realized.

The National Republican, issued at the center of national events, prints each week a comprehensive condensed review of the happenings bearing upon national and world politics, gives a survey of newspaper and personal opinion on public issues, prints the important addresses and statements of political bearing, covers weekly the debates and proceedings of Congress while in session and is a sort of continuous handbook of politics and public affairs. The idea is unique in journalism and has proved immensely popular. The reader who wishes to keep upon politics can find no better medium for that purpose.

The National Republican is published and actively supported by Republican national leaders, not as a financial venture, but as a means of political information and education deemed especially essential at this time when the general channels of information are so completely commanded by the party in power. It carries no advertising despite its large national circulation. It prints weekly some sixty thousand words of news and comment.

The National Republican may be had in combination with this paper the combination price for both papers being $3.50 a year.

Subscriptions for the National Republican may be left at this office. The subscription price is one dollar per year. Adv

TRAVELING MAN'S EXPERIENCE

You may learn something from the following by W. H. Ireland, a traveling salesman of Louisville, Ky. "In the summer of 1888 I had a severe attack of cholera morbus. I gave the hotel porter fifty cents and told him to buy me a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic and Diarrhoea Remedy and to take no substitute. I took a double dose of it according to the directions and went to sleep. At five o'clock the next morning I was called by my order and took a train for my next place, a well man." Adv-9-1

She Knew a Way. A little girl in our neighborhood stumbled and fell, hurting her head quite badly. The hair had to be cut around the wound, and after telling her that her hair would not grow where the hair was cut she said: "If I put some hair seed on—" Chicago Tribune.

THE CALL TO SERVICE

There is much talk going on in the country now by seers and others who are preaching radical changes in government. What is the matter with our present government? Our constitution gives us inalienable, inviolable rights of personal property, personal liberty and private property. To change it, as advocated by some, would be to disregard these splendid privileges; no matter how pure a theory some forms of government, such as socialism, may be based upon. History has taught us that the administration of these is not American in the fact that the principles of our constitution are disregarded. The Bolsheviks of Russia and the I. W. W.s of America are one and the same thing—all disregarding rights of property, personal security and personal liberty. To what lengths they have gone in Russia in the disregard of personal security and liberty is well known. There is nothing American in this. The American people do not need a new form of government, but rather they need to awake to the true signs of the times—namely, the call to service in the highest sense of the word.—R. H. Ballard of Los Angeles.

The Roaming Bee.

According to a scientist if a bee finds a suitable patch of flowers by following a zigzag course it will seek it again by the same devious route, and not in a straight line from the nest. Certain bees coming to visit a hollyhock always came over the wall 25 yards to one side instead of directly opposite.

Start on Trade at 3.

In India wood, metal and ivory carvers begin to learn their trade at the age of three years and become skilled workers by the time they are twelve.

STIMULATING THE OIL PRODUCTION

Large oil companies are spending millions drilling test wells in territory known to have oil bearing geologic strata.

There is still delay by congress in enacting land leasing laws for public lands having oil bearing formations.

It is a political holdup on the part of the conservation politicians who sprang into existence years ago.

They have never done anything, but hold up the development of the great undeveloped regions of the west and Alaska.

In the meantime the oil scarcity goes on increasing, while American capital is driven to invest in Mexico and Europe.

The surface reserve of domestic crude petroleum held on May 31, 1919, by pipe lines and marketing companies and by refineries that receive it directly from the wells was approximately 132,165,000 barrels, a decrease of 529,000 barrels, or about 4 per cent, compared with the quantity on hand April 30, 1919, and of 11,466,000 barrels, or nearly 8 per cent, compared with the quantity in storage on May 31, 1918.

No Friends Like Old Friends.

Esteem of great powers, or available qualities newly discovered, may embroider a day or week, but a friendship of twenty years is interwoven with the texture of life. A friend may be found and lost, but an old friend can never be found, and nature has provided that he cannot easily be lost.—Samuel Johnson.

Relieves Pain of Sting.

The Savoyards rub a crushed clove of garlic upon a spot that has been stung by a wasp or bee. This makes the swelling go down and drives away the pain.

NOT CHARGEABLE TO SENATE

Permanent relief from the high cost of living can not come, according to the President, until the United States has performed its part in the making of peace. So long as there is any possibility that the terms will be changed or that there will be "divisions of opinion among the powers associated against Germany, Europe cannot recover her losses or put her people to work. During that time the United States must continue to extend aid to those nations, if we are to believe the President's diagnosis.

It is true that the people of Europe have not settled down yet to production, but are still in a restless and distracted state. It follows also, as the President says, that our exports of almost every commodity will continue abnormally large until Europe begins to produce again. But there is no connection whatever between the unrest in Europe and time consumed by the senate in the consideration of the peace treaty. The treaty is now a fact so far as concerns the European allies and their recovery from the war is no longer hindered by uncertainty as to its terms. The real delay in the recuperation of the warring nations was caused by Mr. Wilson himself in holding up the making of peace for seven long months, while he fought for his precious league of nations. During all that time no indemnities could be collected from Germany, none of the stolen machinery could be returned, nobody knew what territorial adjustments were to be made, and in general the population of Europe was kept completely in the dark concerning the future. Mr. Wilson will never succeed in shifting responsibility for conditions in Europe from his own shoulders to the United States senate.

News in the "Ads."

A well-written advertisement is always also a news item. It tells what, where and for how much. It is the advertiser who speaks and it is the reader who gets the message. It is glad news for both. There is pleasure in knowing that you can part with something to supply another's need, just as it is a pleasure to know where you can get something that is much desired.—Columbus Dispatch.
